

Meet One of the Greatest Environmentalists of Our Time

Father Andrés Tamayo (Honduras)

Photo courtesy of Christian Lazen-Bernardt for Goldman Environmental Prize.

He put his life in jeopardy to save the Honduran Forests, and has been compared to Nelson Mandela, Cesar Chavez and Martin Luther King Jr.

He is the winner of the Goldman Environmental Prize
(the Nobel Peace Prize of the environmental movement) and the winner of the Honduras National Human Rights Award.

He has led thousands of people in peaceful marches and protests to end the rampant commercial logging that is plaguing the communities of Honduras.

Meet Father Andres Tamayo and get inspired by his amazing work.
Learn about how his work could be impacted by globalization and trade rules and what YOU can do in the fight for a just and sustainable world.

Thursday, June 23, 2005 – 6:30-8 pm

Sierra Club Legislative Offices, 401 C Street, NE, Washington, DC

RSVP by June 20 to Melissa Jenkins at phone (202) 675-7917
or e-mail: melissa.jenkins@sierraclub.org

Local, organic fare and refreshments provided.

For more information visit: www.GoldmanPrize.org or www.SierraClub.org/trade/

