

Sierra Club General Meeting

Join Us at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 15, via Zoom

Solve Climate Change Now
Do What You Love for a Healthy Planet

Don't despair about climate change, and don't wait for someone else to act! Our success in bending the curve on climate change depends upon enlisting many more people in the effort. Every one of us can be a part of solving climate change - no matter our knowledge, resources, available time, or where we live. Learn about the wide variety of opportunities we each have in our daily activities, and how to connect what you love to do with climate needs and ways to make a difference that are fulfilling to you. The key is a proven attraction model for engaging yourself and others. Join Don Maruska, Silicon Valley entrepreneur, decades-long member of the Sierra Club, Climate Solver, and author of the new book "Solve Climate Change Now: Do What You Love for a Healthy Planet" for an interactive discussion about what we can do and how to have fun doing it.

Don Maruska engages people around the world to take climate action and have fun doing it. Since 2003, he has brought together people from scientific, environmental, business, government, and community organizations to boost awareness, actions, and advocacy for stewardship of natural resources. Don enjoys grassroots actions. These include developing strategies with businesses and community organizations to reduce their greenhouse gas emissions. He has also created videos, study guides, and support resources in use by faith-based groups from multiple denominations. Don's new book, "Solve Climate Change Now: Do What You Love for a Healthy Planet," shares practical ways to enjoy taking action for a healthy climate.

Earlier in his career, Don founded and was CEO of three Silicon Valley companies, earning a National Innovator Award. Now, he's a Master Certified Coach helping others succeed. Don is also the author of "How Great Decisions Get Made" and co-author of "Take Charge of Your Talent." Don was the first in his family to attend college and earned his BA magna cum laude in government from Harvard University and an MBA and JD from Stanford University. He has appeared on over 30 radio and TV stations across the country.
