RESIDENTIAL CUSTOMER

Dear Resident,

Did you know that Rocky Mountain Power wants to raise your bill by 21.6%? You could see that increase reflected as early as January.

In what is the largest proposed rate increase customers have seen in over a decade, Rocky Mountain Power's (RMP) request could severely burden Wyomingites who are barely making ends meet, while significantly impacting small businesses that are already spread thin.

RMP is a monopoly utility in Wyoming that is owned by Warren Buffett's multi-billion dollar parent company, Berkshire Hathaway Energy. The company has admitted that 97% of the adjustment is due to the price volatility of gas and coal, yet wants to keep customers on the hook for its bad business plans and gamble with our money.

Right now, Rocky Mountain Power's proposed rate increase is under review by the PSC, the regulating body that has the authority to ensure utilities provide customers with reliable service and fair rates. They need to hear from people like you.

- Rocky Mountain Power is offloading its risk onto customers, gambling on our dime while its executives and shareholders enjoy the profits.
- 2) It's up to the PSC to hold Rocky Mountain Power accountable to ask responsibly and with ratepayers in mind

Your voice matters! Send a comment to the PSC and tell them to keep the best interest of customers in mind before casting their vote, and do all they can to limit rate hikes on customers. Talk from the heart, share your personal experiences, and tell the Commission how higher electricity bills would impact you and your family.
