OIL BAN

The coast is clear!

By Katie Davis LAST LEASES

With the recent termination of Carone Petroleum's leases off Carpinteria for failure to pay, the entire Santa Barbara County coastline to the 3-mile state water boundary is now part of the permanently protected Coastal Sanctuary. Carone had intended to do slant drilling from federal Platform Hogan into state waters. That threat is now gone.

With abandonment Venoco's Platform Holly near Goleta also in process, this landmark decision on June 29 by the State Lands Commission terminates the last active oil/gas leases in state waters off our county.

Now, the state is identifying and plugging old leaking wells in Ellwood and Summerland, some of those century-old wells were the first offshore oil wells in the country.

POWER PLAY

SoCal Edison has energy storage projects to supply local electric needs in Ventura and (South Coast) Santa Barbara counties instead of the 262-megawatt natural-gas peaker plant on an Oxnard shoreline. That power plant was vigorously opposed by the Sierra Club and community

The new plan includes a 100-megawatt/400-megawatt-hour system of lithium-ion batteries in Oxnard, and smaller units in Camarillo, Carpinteria and Goleta. Plan is to come online in December

This is a significant victory for clean energy and air advocates; it also marks the first rejection of a new gas power plant in the state.

Our local victory is contributing to a movement: a decision not to repower three Los Angeles natural-gas power plants, which Mayor Garcetti called, "the beginning of the end of natural gas in Los Angeles."

GREENING THE GRID

There's more: SB Board of Supervisors voted on July 16 to join Monterrey Bay Community Power (MBCP), a Community Choice Energy (CCE) provider, for county areas outside cities, but it is likely that the cities of Goleta and Carpinteria will join. Santa Maria has expressed interest as well.

The city of Santa Barbara is looking into its own CCE program for local city control which could promote higher levels of renewable

All of Ventura County has already moved forward into the Clean Power Alliance (with Los Angeles). All these programs offer the ability to provide more renewable energy at competitive rates, increase choice and energy democracy. Such a program could achieve ambitious 100% renewable energy goals faster.

Worthy note: Our entire Los Padres Chapter region is now on track to enjoy these benefits!

ELECTRIFY EVERYTHING

Once we have a 100% renewable energy grid, electrifying transportation and buildings provides a path to kick our fossil fuel addiction. Here are some examples:

~ SB County will replace fleet cars up for replacement with electric source of greenhouse gas emissions. offer public health benefits, and facilitate new construction without the need for gas hookups and infrastructure. It would save money for owners and renters. Berkeley just passed a historic ban on gas in new construction, and over 50 cities across the state have expressed an interest in similar action along with strengthening building codes.

~ Buying solar power and driving Electric Vehicle (or hybrid) cars is in high demand regionally. On that score, Sierra Club is again hosting and helping EV shows locally and offering discounts on solar (see stories back page).

OILS NOT WELL

We should feel good about the progress above -- some of which would have been unimaginable just a few years ago.

But we need to re-double our resolve to fight the oily threats to our region, from Trump's efforts to open up drilling on public lands and waters to some of the worst local oil projects ever proposed.

In July massive 1,100,000-gallon oil spill in Kern County provided a reminder of the particular dangers of steam injection oil development, as did the recent USGS studies finding oil contaminants in groundwater in Oxnard and Orcutt.

But these too can lead to progress. In June, Ventura County enacted a 6-month moratorium on new steam wells in Oxnard. In Santa Barbara County, oil companies are delaying projects, fearing imminent rejection. An example comes from SBC Planning Commission hearing on ERG's project scheduled for Aug. 14. It suddenly saw the light and decided to amend its application to add some solar panels to its very large and polluting steam oil project, postponing a decision.

Interestingly, Texas billionaire Andrew Beal, who owns ERG's debt, currently has a pro-Trump super PAC called, "Save America from its Government." It seems fossil fuel

Border suit blues

On behalf of the Sierra Club, American Civil Liberties Union announced in late July that it will seek to expedite proceedings before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in order to restore a permanent block on border wall construction using unauthorized military funds.

The announcement comes right after the Supreme Court temporarily granted the Trump Administration's request to unfreeze up to $2.5 billion in military funds for wall construction while the Ninth Circuit considers the merits of the government's appeal.

The decision on behalf of the Club and Southern Border Communities Coalition challenges the president's abuse of emergency powers for border wall funds Congress denied, and for which he said Mexico will pay.

"The decision to permit the diversion of military funds for border wall construction will wall off and destroy communities, public lands, and waters in California, New Mexico, and Arizona. We've seen the destruction that the everexpanding border wall has inflicted. The Sierra Club will continue to fight this wall and Trump's agenda through and through," said Gloria Smith, an attorney representing the

North County S.B. invites your input

Anyone in northern Santa Barbara County whose zip code starts with 932 or 934 is lucky enough to be in the Los Padres Chapter's Arguello

Since there are so many oil and development issues within the zips, the Chapter would like to bolster the membership numbers and make it easy for people to get more active to protect the land, water and air in this vibrant region, that is also home to excellent hiking trails, a long coastline and mountainous areas.

Arguello Group has long been active in monthly programs, numerous free hikes, social gatherings, trash clean-ups and some political activism as well. But some key members have passed away and new leaders and volunteers of all ages are needed.

current leader and is also active with Los Padres Forest Watch, and member Rosemary Holmes of Lompoc has sent out a call to revitalize the group.

"I for one sure miss our monthly meetings, which were vibrant, productive, and informative," Holmes said, adding "there are many, many members of the Sierra Club in this area and I am hoping to hear from a few in order to meet and plan. Let's do this!"

"Insofar as oil issues alone, now would be a great time to make this more viable for serving members from Lompoc, Santa Ynez, Santa Maria, Orcutt and other regions. The north county is especially vulnerable, especially with the Bureau of Land Management opportunities now open with express directions from the current administration," Holmes said.

The chapter's Executive Director Jon Ullman is ready to help.

For all members who are reading this, ask friends and neighbors to join the Sierra Club and help focus on the North County's environment. To get involved, contact Holmes at (805) 200-4076, Ullman at (305) 283-6070 or email them:

In response to the increasing potential for a wildfire due to heat and drought in the Los Padres National Forest, fire restrictions have been raised until further notice (usually after it rains in late Autumn). Restrictions affect the use of campfires, stoves and smoking.

In short, no open fires (wood or charcoal) will be permitted outside of developed recreation sites or designated Campfire Use Sites (even with a valid California Campfire Permit). Lanterns and portable stoves will be permitted, but only with a valid Campfire Permit, which are available free-of-charge. Details at ranger stations or on the website:

Smoking is prohibited, except within an enclosed vehicle, building or a designated Campfire Site.

Internal combustion engines may be operated only on roads or designated trails (a year-round rule).

CFROG evolves name and mission of climate change

It used to be called Citizens for Responsible Oil and Gas, but times have changed. It's now Climate First: Replacing Oil & Gas. But don't worry, the now-familiar CFROG name with the frog legs logo stays, ready to protect its habitat from irresponsible oil and gas.

It's quite a clever change word-wise and mission-wise. To sweeten the transformation, it also has a new office in Ventura (940 E. Santa Clara, Suite 201), and a new Executive Director, Marie Lakin, formerly a savvy political aide to state assembly and senate offices.

"Given the latest science, CFROG recognizes that it can no longer advocate for 'responsible' oil and gas development. The organization's new name reflects and sets the stage for its renewed purpose: transitioning communities from fossil fuels to clean renewable energy," according to its website.

The alteration was in the works as it was growing from an

GREETINGS FRIENDS

Trail a personal journey

By Jim Hines

Each step I take as I walk along the Laguna Ridge Fire Road Trail (in the Los Padres National Forest west of Lake Casitas) I feel the emotion of joy of our great outdoors.

But this trail is different than others I hike on for I connect with my past and the past of my ancestors since this ridge was once part of my family's historic ranch dating back to the 1840s.

The trail on the ridge is high enough (1000-foot elevation) that I can look down on my childhood home, see those tall pine trees which my dad planted around the house and I bask in every movement along the trail.

Beauty abounds on the trail changing with each season. The spring 2019 super bloom was amazing. Flowers I had not seen in years were in full bloom. Now summer has set in and the heat changes the tone along the ridge. My last walk was early morning before the heat set in for the day.

Wildlife abounds, deer graze, mountain lion tracks are regularly seen, and wild boar rut along Coyote Creek below the ridge. On a clear day you can see across the Ojai Valley to the east, vast stretches of the Los Padres National Forest backcountry and great views of the Pacific Ocean. There, I feel that I am on top of the world or at least my world.

We are all from somewhere, and I feel so fortunate to be able to return time and time again to where I am from (the ridge trail is only 20 minutes from where I currently

I feel each time I visit my father's spirit, for he is buried below the ridge. His spirit walks with me as we did together when I was a child, walking or riding our horses on the ridge. While my father is now gone from the physical world, I feel him, sense him and communicate with him.

I have had the fortune to be able to travel to many parts of America and other amazing places on our planet, but my greatest journey is along the Laguna Ridge Trail for not only is it a physical journey, but a personal, emotional journey for me.

When I walk the ridge I feel that I am part of something much larger than myself, the power of nature, the grand beauty of our natural world, my past, my feelings and emotions all come out.

Bills tackle plastics at source and shops

Amidst growing awareness worldwide environmental devastation and health problems wrought by plastic and nontrash, Environment California gathered local students and eco-groups at Goleta Pier on July 25 to urge city and state officials to act.

Called the Circular Economy and Plastic Pollution Reduction Act, the identical bills are: SB 54 (Allen) and AB 1080 (Gonzalez). These two bills attack the trash crisis at both ends -- before a product is ever created or purchased, and after a single-use item is ready for disposal.

The Sierra Club supports the bills, and Los Padres Chapter Chair Katie Davis was there to witness their launch at the Pier:

"Single-use products typically plastic packaging—are overflowing our landfills, fouling our oceans and impacting our food chain and public health. Current disposal and recycling policies are insufficient. By targeting the reduction, composting or recycling of 75 % of single-use packaging by 2030, this bill is an important step forward in protecting people and ecosystems and reducing our reliance on fossil fuels."

Others who support the bills included League of Women Voters, Surfrider, ChannelKeeper and Gray Whales Count, among many others.

Local State Senate member Hannah Beth Jackson and Assembly member Monique Limón are on board with the bills. Limón said, "The natural environment is an important part of the identity and economy of the State and Santa Barbara and Ventura counties. Pollution such as excessive plastics threaten our pristine environment

Meanwhile, Ventura Sierra Club Chair Nina Danza has embarked on a personal quest during "Plastic Free July". Here's her report on Facebook:

"One week of 'almost' plastic free report: This is what my spouse bought (who's not in the program, photos of fruit in plastic) but what I'll eat so I'm half guilty. On average I have failed with one little plastic item a day. Bread bag, old reused Ziploc bag, rare soda bottle. I'm a lot worse than Kat Selm and Candice Meneghin who are kickin' butt. The good news is awareness! I will more easily take out that nagging little plastic a day over the next few months. TRY

The anti-public land foes wouldn't dare touch Yellowstone or Yosemite would they? ('Springtime in Yellowstone' by Eva Kåmark).

Public land foes grab power that agencies in the Trump Administration want to dismantle (or their word "realign") America's national public lands west of the Mississippi, many of which affect California and favorites such as Grand Canyon, Bears Ears, Canyonlands, Sawtooth, Glacier and even our Channel Islands National Park. Not on our watch. The news comes from our Los Padres Chapter vice-chair Jim Hines, who often works on national issues on behalf of the Sierra Club. Here's his report:

This morning (July 29) I took part in a conference call with the executive staff of the U.S. Dept of the Interior and several staffers from the U.S. Forest Service and the Republican leadership of the U.S. Senate.

While a great deal of discussion was centered around large units of national public lands, there was some discussion of areas within the Ventura-Santa Barbara-San Luis Obispo county region.

The Trump executive staff is concerned about how the Channel Islands National Park staff will respond when the Administration releases its proposal for vast new offshore oil leasing in federal waters of the Santa Barbara Channel. The proposal will be released AFTER the 2020 Presidential election because it does not want any federal agency to oppose the oil/gas the offshore drilling plan.

Also, the Forest Service will be drafting executive orders to allow more lands within national forests (in our own backyard, the Los Padres National Forest) to be opened for mining and drilling. An inventory of all uranium deposits could include the Lake Casitas Watershed, which has in the past been subject to uranium mining claims.

There is an all-out effort by the Administration to stop any land protection bills currently before Congress, such as our own Central Coast Heritage Protection Act which includes the LPNF. Senate leader Mitch McConnell may stop it from even coming to a vote. Too, the Secretary of the Interior does not even like the fact that Carrizo Plain National Monument (in SLO County) even exists and efforts by the federal manager (BLM) to weaken it will be made.

The anti-public lands people even take a negative view of America's urban national park units such as the Santa Monica Mountains National Recreation Area (SMMNRA) in Ventura and Los Angeles counties which also does not bode well for the Rim of the Valley Corridor Protection Act currently before Congress.

I have a scheduled meeting in September with the new BLM director who was just appointed by the President because of his antifederal land views (great example of the fox guarding the henhouse).

It's kind of surreal being in on a discussion of how to dismantle or severely weaken an entire Interior Department which was created to protect America's great natural heritage.

"Until now, only a handful of biologists had the privilege to observe wild condor nests. They had to trek into the remote backcountry and wait for days, sometimes weeks, at observation blinds located hundreds of feet from the nests to catch a glimpse of the birds," says Dr. Estelle Sandhaus, the Santa Barbara Zoo's Director of Conservation and Research. "Today's technology allows researchers like us to observe a number of nests with high precision – and in high definition. That enables more efficient nest management and research for us and allows anyone with an internet connection to share in the excitement of scientific discovery."

The wild population fell to just 22 birds in the 1980s, but there are now more than 300 free-flying birds in California, Arizona and Baja California, with about 200 or more in captivity for breeding, viewing (SB Zoo is closest) and research.

Celebrating the gorgeous and Laura Dangermond, who donated $165 million to create the Dangermond Preserve. While they can't attend in person, director of the preserve, Michael Bell, will accept the Coastal Legacy 2019 Honor on their behalf.

The event is at the Academy's Marilyn Horne House, a setting to send you back to another time. It's a catered affair along with live music and silent and live auctions for an unforgettable experience.

Maintaining agriculture, ecological integrity and public access to the Gaviota Coast is tantamount to GCC's mission. The Los Padres Chapter Sierra Club is part of the Naples Coalition and supports the Conservancy.

Newly appointed Executive Director of GCC, Doug Kern, said, "For 20 years Conservancy volunteers have protected these precious resources for all of us. It is my great honor and privilege to join these passionate activists and help bring their tireless labor to fruition.

The Dangermond Preserve is 24,364 acres, with eight miles of coastline. The couple donated the money to The Nature Conservancy to buy it from the Bixby Ranch (previously Cojo-Jalama Ranch).

"Over the years, Laura and I have become deeply attached to this land. It is a very special place and one of the most unique land and ocean ecosystems in the world. It also happens to be the home to many globally important, rare, and endangered species," said Jack Dangermond. "We hope our gift inspires and motivates other people and organizations to pursue similar opportunities to conserve remaining natural areas important to the future of our planet."

31. Ormond Beach Restoration and Public Access Plan had a second airing in Oxnard with the city, state Coastal Conservancy and Nature conservancy which has a "preferred alternative to restore the coastal habitats ... and improve public access." Sierra Club was there, and many testified or wrote comments, notably Ventura Sierra Club Chair Nina Danza. View the plan here:

Oil delayed

Two action groups were able to "score an incredible victory for the people of South Oxnard" by delaying an expansion of the Cabrillo Oil Field.

The Field is located near lowincome residents surrounded by oil drilling, pesticides and diesel truck traffic.

CFROG (Climate First: Replacing Oil & Gas) and WaterWatch brought the issue to the Ventura Board of Supervisors on July 23. A 4-1 vote directed staff to return Sept. 24 with a resolution of denial for the expansion.

Sierra Club supports the delay and eventual denial, which CFROG believes has the votes to pass.

"This, along with the moratorium on new cyclic steam oil drilling near the Fox Canyon Aquifer, shows us the tide is turning in our efforts to accelerate the transition to clean energy," CFROG said in a statement.

educate about SB 54 and AB 1080, designed to drastically reduce plastic waste and consumption over the next decade and turn our waste into a resource, bills which the Sierra Club has endorsed. (See story pg 3)

July 21: Ormond Beach clean-up and nature walk in concert with the Nature Conservancy, hosted by Amy Davis.

July 9: Gaviota Film by Shaw Leonard was sponsored by the Ventura Sierra Club at Foster Library as part of its popular Venture(a) Out educational series. "Gaviota: The End of Southern California." (See story pg 5)

June 28: Eco-Groups celebrate the termination of four oil/gas leases within the three-mile limit off Carpinteria's coast, announced by the Environmental Defense Center which represented the groups, including our Sierra Club. "This lease termination will permanently protect the coastal ocean waters of Carpinteria by adding a former oil lease to the coastal sanctuary." said Katie Davis, Chair of our Los Padres Chapter. (See story pg 1)

June 26: U2's Edge 'Mali-booed' with "a near fatal blow" for his (aka David Evans) $100 million rock and roll colony idea high in the hills overlooking the Malibu Pier, wrote Steve Lopez in the Los Angeles Times, due to a California Supreme Court decision. It's been a big deal for nearly 15 years and was the Sierra Club that filed suit to block what the club's hired lawyer, Dean Wallraff, said would have been a "scar" on an untouched hillside. June 23: Club Chapters met in the city of Brotherly Love (Philadelphia).

June 7: World Oceans Day was celebrated in both Ventura and Santa Barbara with Sierra Club members taking part, along with Surfrider's cleanup at Surfer's Point in Ventura.

The media showed up at Goleta Pier to hear advocates of pending bills that would help reduce plastic pollution. The bills are identical for the state Assembly and Senate: AB 1080 and SB 54. Documentary filmmaker Shaw Leonard shown filming along the Gaviota Coast and inland during the five years he spent creating what's now known as simply "The Gaviota Movie". (Photo contributed)

Gaviota movie our biggest hit

By Sam Marin

"It's a full house; we're going to need more chairs," said Rachel Enevoldsen, host to the Venture(a) Out Sierra Club events having its first movie night on July 9 at the Foster Library.

The documentary was "Gaviota: The End of Southern California" which took five years of filming by local filmmakers Shaw Leonard and Tamlorn Chase with the help of numerous people in Santa Barbara and funding by Patagonia, among others.

"It drew our biggest attendance ever and was a hit for a summer night," said Nina Danza, chair of Ventura Sierra Club.

Admission is always free to the Venture(a) Out series coordinated by Enevoldsen, which normally has an educational guest speaker; a recent example being Fish and Wildlife coyote expert Jason Hodge. The series usually fills the Topping Room by half or more, but word of the documentary film must've spread all over because people were pouring in.

Some made small conversations to the strangers around them; others were surprised and happy to see an old friend and the sound grew in volume.

When the movie started it had the attention of everyone; people were still coming in and, because there were no more seats, some chose to stand along the back wall. The audience was 'ooh-ing' and 'awe-ing' when certain animals and or landscapes were shown; along with small giggles and chuckles when an animal would do something cute.

theTradeDesk

The film's main purpose was to show the different plants and animals that live in Gaviota in contrast to most of the Southern California coast being urbanized. Capturing the beauty of life that lives there, it reminded the audience how it's so important to help keep our planet clean and protect such open lands like the Gaviota Coast. (Our Los Padres Chapter of the Sierra Club is part of the Naples Coalition and Gaviota Coast Conservancy.)

Many people were eager to ask questions at Leonard's Q&A afterward, one of which was: "Where can you buy this documentary and how much is it?"

It's not for sale, "I'm actually trying to get people up and out of their homes," Leonard answered with a smile.

It was first shown at the Santa Barbara Film Festival in 2017 at the Lobero which had to turn people away. Since then, it has made the rounds of other festivals, and local groups like the Sierra Club have had similar movie nights featuring it.

You can go online for future showings on its Facebook page; just type in the title: Gaviota The End of Southern California.

Donors bolster our actions

Please accept an immense thank you to every one of you who contributed money to our annual March Appeal, making it possible for all of us to be catalysts of change.

While we only ask you once per year, you can contribute anytime, and the simplest way is online ... make it monthly!. Just click on the 'Donate' link at our website: www.sierraclub.org/donate/1000

The Sierra Club has been at it since 1892, saving Yosemite and the Grand Canyon, helping to secure passage of the Wilderness Act, Clean Air Act, Endangered Species Act and so much more.

Your donations to the Los Padres Chapter stay local, supporting the incredible work our volunteers are doing in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties, which includes hundreds of free outings per year and firstclass activism keeping our air and water safe from threats like pollution, fracking, off-shore oil drilling and unrestrained development.

Go Electric

In September there are multiple National Drive Electric Week Events in our area, which will give you options to fit one or more into your schedule.

The public is clamoring for electric and hybrid cars, and discounts are still available. Green Tech Media reports sales increased by 81% in 2018; Market Watch estimates "more than 30 million are likely to buy an electric car as their next vehicle."

Or, as Condor Call editor John Hankins said in July as he passed a fuel station after four months of driving a fully electric car: "Oh, a gas station. How quaint."

He has since bought an electric scooter and an electric trike for his wife Suz – all running off solar power, but the car sometimes uses a commercial plug-in for charging at a fraction of the cost of gas. Most EV drivers find the cost per mile to be about 1/3rd the cost of petroleum.

Perhaps the largest shows will be our Sierra Club sponsored show in Oxnard, which was a great success last year, and CEC's Goleta event.

Come to the shows and learn more about the vast variety of fully electric and hybrid vehicles on display. Talk to EV owners and learn from their expertise and experiences ... without a sales pitch!

If you are an EV owner, sign up to show your car and share your experience, a great opportunity for us to come together to make connections and influence change. To register your vehicle for shows or for more specific information, go to the links below.

Kent Bullard is the local Sierra Club chapter's Transportation

Chair and he is helping to organize these events. Both he and his wife Cathy will be showing their cars.

Vehicles on display by owners will be current model battery electric and plug-in hybrids and a variety of vintage cars, neighborhood vehicles, motorcycles, bikes, trikes and even watercraft. Here's the calendar and links:

Go Solar

SunPower and Sierra Club are working together to make it easy for anyone (member or not) to go solar and save money with a proven company backed by the club.

This is especially critical in the Ventura area which has joined the Clean Power Alliance. Having solar is an advantage for lower prices.

You'll receive a $1,000 mailin rebate while the Sierra Club gets $1,000 to support its work for clean energy.

Condor John (editor, Condor Call) took advantage of the club's deal three years ago. "Next Door is full of comments today about how residents' bills may have risen since Ventura joined the CPA and SCE's new rate structure. But guess what, my bill for July was $14 even after I chose the 100% clean energy tier. That's because I have Sierra Club solar. Even with my 10-year loan to buy it, my bill is less than it would be without solar."

Aug 30 deadline

Another program is for those who live within the city of Ventura, but you must sign up by Aug. 30.

Solarize Ventura is a program by the Community Environmental Council (CEC) in partnership with the City of Ventura that makes it easier and more affordable to go solar.

It assists residents who are rebuilding from the Thomas Fire. Nancy O'Rode who lost her home and helped select the solar contractor, said, "As we rebuild, we are happy to have support from the City in considering options for solar energy ... I hope that the educational workshops and discounted pricing from Solarize Ventura will make a few decisions easier for our community."
