Sierra Club Endorses Gavin Newsom for Governor

One of Nation's Largest & Oldest Environmental Organizations Endorses Newsom, Praising His Commitment to Green Energy and Fighting Climate Change

CALIFORNIA -- The Sierra Club -- one of the largest and oldest environmental organizations in the nation -- endorsed Gavin Newsom in the 2018 California Governor's race. In California alone, Sierra Club boasts more than 180,000 members, and the organization will be mounting a campaign to mobilize their extensive membership ahead of the 2018 elections.

“Gavin Newsom is a champion for the environment,” said Kathryn Phillips, director of Sierra Club California. “He has a proven record for leading on environmental protection, public health and clean energy. He understands that we are feeling the effects of climate change and that California must reduce carbon emissions and reach 100% renewable energy to achieve our climate goals. Sierra Club volunteers are eager to canvas for Newsom to ensure he is sworn in as our next Governor.”

Sierra Club Executive Director Michael Brune stated, “The Sierra Club is proud to endorse Gavin Newsom to be California's next Governor. From defending California from Donald Trump's attacks on our clean air and water to his bold plans to keep moving our state forward, Newsom has proven he's the governor California needs.”
