Hello, my fellow Sierra Nevada enthusiasts! The high season for climbing is shortly going to be upon us, so leaders need to get their thinking caps on and put those trips together so we will have a robust schedule for the summer. I would like to thank our Outings Chair, Gary Schenk, for his years of service to the Section—we wouldn’t have a successful program if it weren’t for folks like Gary doing the work to get trips scheduled. We have a new Outings Chair taking the place of Gary, Phillip Bates, and I am sure you will all welcome him into his new role. I appreciate that Phil has been willing to take over a very busy and important position to help the section. Thank you very much, Phil!

On a sad note, you may already have learned that one of our great members and leaders, John W. Robinson, recently passed away. He was a legendary writer of local guidebooks, and a very knowledgeable and inspirational figure. His early books, like the iconic Trails of the Angeles, inspired many young hikers and gave wonderful guidance. I am very fortunate to have his first edition of Trails of the Angeles. Upon my request to have him sign it (years later), he quipped, “I hope you’re not still using this!” He meant that particular edition, of course. But I often use it to remember what those early hiking days were like. We will miss John, a great mentor and friend.

Finally, we are going to need to have some members step up and serve on the nominating committee and elections committee. We need three members for these very important functions in order to conduct the annual election of officers. One can serve on both if desired. So, who will take on this responsibility? Kindly let a member of the current management committee know. If you would like to run for the next Mcomm, let us know also. See y’all in the Sierra!

Our New Outings Chair
Thanks to Gary Schenk for serving as our fine outings chair for a number of years. Welcome and thank you to new outings chair Phil Bates (yes, we now have two SPS members both named Philip Bates! This one is Philip A. Bates).
Welcome new members!

Larry Edmonds

Larry has been backpacking in the Sierra for the past thirty-five years. The trips began as fly-fishing trips to remote lakes but in more recent years have become trips to escape into his favorite mountain range. Always having enjoyed the challenge of a good peak climb and the resulting views, he has become much more peak focused in the past ten years. He has completed the San Diego County 100 peaks list, climbed 123 of the peaks on the HPS list, as well as a number of DPS and SPS peaks. He’s looking forward to many more Sierra peaks and meeting other members of the SPS.

Emilia Sopranzi

Emilia grew up playing in the ocean on the Florida coast. She had never been camping or hiking until after college when she decided she was ready for a change and moved to the California foothills in 2016. She quickly fell in love with the challenge and reward of peak bagging. It only took one, and she was hooked. Her first summit in California was Matterhorn Peak, and it still stands as her favorite! Since then she has summited eight SPS peaks with plenty more planned. Working towards her SPS Emblem and Geographic Emblem, she is looking forward to connecting with individuals who share the same passion. She’ll see you in the mountains!

Philip S. Bates

From the Northeast, Phil began exploring the Range of Light with his wife and brothers after moving to San Francisco in the mid-1990s. From summer day hikes and scrambles in Yosemite, he soon progressed to backpacking, winter outings, and mountaineering, especially in the breathtaking Eastern Sierra. He summited over two hundred Sierra peaks during the past twenty years, including 120 on the SPS list and all of the 14ers, and has backpacked the length and breadth of the Sierra on the PCT, JMT, High Sierra Trail, and many cross-country routes. He has also climbed most of the Cascade volcanoes, the major Mexican volcanoes, several dozen high peaks in the Rockies, and most of the highest summits in the Northeast. With the recent splitting of their home life between Sonoma Valley and Scottsdale, Arizona, Phil and his wife are now exploring more of the lovely Southwest. Nonetheless, the Sierra Nevada remains their favorite summer playground, with many unclimbed peaks and backcountry routes on his ever-growing wish list. He views his new SPS membership as an ideal way to further his exploration of the high Sierra.
Bob Pickering earned senior emblem #150 on July 25, 2014, on Vandever Mountain.

Coming in the next issue, articles on and photos from climbs of Denali by SPS members this year.

A group of twenty met to hike to Henniger Flats, a hike that RJ Secor did more than two thousand times. Organized by Asher Waxman, Dan Richter, and Henry Arnebold and informally sponsored by the SPS and CMC (California Mountaineering Club, of which RJ was a founding member), this outing was a fine memorial to the long-time SPS member and two-time SPS list finisher. Attending and shown in the group photo below were, left to right, Scot Jamison, Gary Bowen, Scot Angus, Julie Rush and dog named Little Dog, Jan Brahms and David Reneric (and their dog Hedgehog Smith), Ron Hudson behind and between them, Karen Andersen, Mark and Joy Goebel, Ron Eckelmann, Jim Murphy, Don Croley, Tom Ritchie, Tracy Sulkin, and Asher Waxman. Not shown are Terry Flood, Elena Sherman, and Scott Sullivan.

Back in the April-June 2014 (58.2) issue of the Echo, we published a list of SPS peaks that can be reasonably climbed in a day, a list compiled by Kathy Rich with a little help from others. Following that, we ran a couple of articles about peaks that can be hiked from certain areas, i.e., peaks out of Onion Valley in the July-September 2014 (58.3) issue and peaks out of Bishop from South Lake, Lake Sabrina, and North Lake in the April-June 2015 (59.2) issue. We’re returning to this series with a look at peaks that can be dayhiked from the Mt. Whitney area. Note that some of these are long hikes and that excellent conditioning, comfort and speed on class 3, and adaptation to altitude may be needed to make climbing some of these peaks in one day feasible.

How do I get there?
From the traffic light in Lone Pine, turn west on Whitney Portal Road and head up to the Portal to either the Meysan Lakes trailhead, 11.3 miles from town (note that the trail begins through the Whitney Portal Campground), or the Mt Whitney trailhead, 12.1 miles. You’ll have access to these peaks from the Meysan Lakes Trail: Lone Pine, LeConte, Corcoran, Mallory, and Irvine. From the Mt. Whitney trailhead you can head to Whitney, Muir, McAdie, Irvine, Mallory, and Thor. Also starting on the Mt. Whitney trail, you can leave it after about a mile to head up the North Fork of Lone Pine Creek on use trail, including the class 3 Ebersbacher Ledges to access Russell, Carillon, Tunnabora, and Thor.

Note that 3.2 miles from the traffic signal you’ll come to the Horseshoe Meadows Road. If you turn south here, you will reach Horseshoe Meadows in about 24 miles from Lone Pine. Two clearly marked trailheads are here: Cottonwood Pass and Cottonwood Lakes. From the Cottonwood Pass trail you can climb Cirque. From the Cottonwood Lakes trail you can climb Langley and Cirque. Near the spur road to the Cottonwood Lakes trailhead is a parking lot that can be used for a hike to Muah via Mulkey Pass.

What peaks require a Mt. Whitney Zone permit and where do I get that?
All of the peaks that use the Mt. Whitney trail or the North Fork of Lone Pine Creek trail require travel in the Mt. Whitney Zone and thus a Whitney Zone permit (for both day hikes and overnight backpacks). You apply for the permit via the Mt. Whitney lottery, hope for an open date or cancellation, or try for a walk-in permit. Permits are picked up at the Eastern Sierra InterAgency Visitor Center at the south end of Lone Pine. See https://www.fs.usda.gov/main/inyo/passes-permits/recreation-Whitney , https://www.fs.usda.gov/detail/inyo/passes-permits/recreation/?cid=stelprdb5356869, and https://www.fs.usda.gov/detail/inyo/passes-permits/recreation/?cid=stelprdb5150055 for more information.

What peaks don’t require a Whitney Zone permit?
If you choose to climb a peak in a day from the Meysan Lakes Trail or from Horseshoe Meadows, those peaks do not require a Whitney Zone or any other permit.
Where can I camp before my hike?
Lower down, you can camp at the Tuttle Creek (1.5 miles south of the Whitney Portal road on the Horseshoe Meadows Road, eighty-three sites, $8/night) and Lone Pine campgrounds (six miles west of Lone Pine on the Whitney Portal Road, forty-three sites, $22/night). Whitney Portal has a forty-three-site campground where the Meysan Lakes trail begins; the fee here is currently $24/night. At the Portal by the Mt. Whitney trailhead is a walk-in campground for hikers with twenty-five sites available for $15, one-night maximum. Horseshoe Meadows has two camping areas, one by the Cottonwood Lakes trailhead (thirteen walk-in sites), one by the Cottonwood Pass trailhead (eighteen walk-in sites)—all first-come/first-served with a one-night maximum stay. The fee is $6 per night. Of course, Lone Pine has plenty of lodging as well.

Where can I eat if I don’t want to cook?
Lone Pine has many restaurants, and the Whitney Portal Store next to the Mt. Whitney trailhead offers pancakes and burgers. Check their website for hours: http://www.mountwhitneyportal.com/en-us

What else can I do in the area?
The Alabama Hills offer rock climbing, scenic views, and a self-guided auto tour of movie locations (see https://www.lonepinechamber.org/wp-content/uploads/pdfs/movie_road_tour_brochure.pdf for a map and information). Besides the InterAgency Visitor Center, which has information displays and sometimes small art shows, at the south end of Lone Pine, Lone Pine also has the Lone Pine Film History Museum at 701 South Main Street. Annually in October there’s the Lone Pine Film Festival. The Southern Inyo Museum at 127 Bush Street has local history and a large collection of zoological and botanical specimens.

If I want to backpack, where do I get a permit?
You can get wilderness permits for overnight travel at the Eastern Sierra InterAgency Visitor Center. Note that the Whitney Zone permit may be quite hard to obtain for entry from Whitney Portal.
San Francisco Bay Area's Nifty Ninety

Looking for a new place to train for your High Sierra hikes in the off-season or just traveling to the San Francisco Bay Area and want to check out a local summit? Why not hike to one or more of the high points on the Sierra Club's San Francisco Bay Chapter's "Nifty Ninety."

This unique list of summits is as diverse as the Bay Area itself. You can choose to stroll among coastal redwoods, view the California Delta, observe ocean and bay vistas, walk above local wineries, experience an island hike, or visit a volcanic preserve, experiencing urban and remote hikes which feature the many micro-climates of the Bay area.

Unlike other lists based on prominence, county high points, or a certain mountain range, this list is based solely on public access summits in ten Northern California counties making up the Greater Bay Area.

Recently, I completed this list and wanted to recommend the variety of hiking experiences that it offers, from enjoying the view of the Golden Gate Bridge from Hawk Hill to experiencing the flavor of urban neighborhoods in San Francisco and San Jose, from ocean beaches to summit hikes like Mt. Montara, lake views from Berryessa Peak, or historical walks like Rose Hill in Black Diamond Regional Park. If you hike many of the areas in spring, you’ll be treated to lush rolling green hills with abundant wildflowers, while the autumn can provide spectacular fall colors in Napa and Sonoma Counties. Want to get out of the summer heat? Why not try Pine Mountain near Santa Cruz in Big Basin Redwood State Park, California’s first state park.

As a Sierra Club member, why not visit John Muir’s ranch house in Martinez. This national park site offers a hike up a hill named after Muir’s daughter, Wanda. Many of these public access summits were fought for by the Sierra Club, so taking a hike on Muir’s property to Wanda Hill is a way to pay homage to John Muir’s legacy of the preservation of open spaces.

These hikes range from under a mile to a fifteen-to-twenty-mile adventure, whatever you have time for while visiting Northern California. You’ll visit national park sites, state and regional parks, and locally-designated open spaces on the Nifty Ninety. Most trails are class 1 hikes while some, such as Goat Rock in Castle Rock State Park, are a class 3 hike. Rock climbers can add scaling the face of Goat Rock if they wish to do a class 4 climb.

Mt. St. Helena is the highest peak on the list. It offers a literary hike on the Robert Louis Stevenson’s Memorial Trail in the area above Napa Valley where Stevenson honeymooned and wrote The Silverado Squatters. Mt. Diablo is the most prominent peak on the list, and it has the distinction of being the world’s second-best lookout for total viewing area after Mt. Kilimanjaro. The most remote hike is Mt. Sizer in Henry Coe State Park, where I saw two bobcats, deer, and rabbits but no other hikers until I returned to the visitor’s center. The most popular on the Nifty might be Mission Peak near the San Jose Mission.

The Nifty Ninety has four county high points in San Francisco, Solano, Contra Costa, and Marin Counties. The world’s first permanent mountaintop observatory on Mt. Hamilton, Lick Observatory, and Black Mountain offer views of the heart of Silicon Valley.

With the Sierra Club’s backing and publication of the list, it is my hope that SPS members and others will find the experience of hiking these Bay area summits as enjoyable as I have.
DOWN-CLIMBING NORTH PALISADE, August 30, 1985

By Burton A. Falk

Upon reaching the summit of North Palisade, Charlie Winger and I pause to enjoy the view spread out below. The jagged crest upon which we’re perched stretches from Mt. Agassiz in the northwest to magnificent Mt. Sill at the southeast. To the west, splayed out across the rocky Dusy Basin, a myriad of lakes sparkle in the late afternoon sun. To the east, Sierra slopes are beginning to fill with purple shadows. Further east still, across the Owens Valley, beyond the Inyos, the late August sky is already turning gray.

Three hours later, at 8 p.m., after the last light of day has faded away, I’m down-climbing a steep, icy section of couloir, belayed from above by Charlie. I run out the rope, anchor, call “Off belay,” and start to rope in Charlie. Suddenly, the rope jerks to a stop. After a few moments and no further movement, I assume that Charlie is having a problem, so I shout up at him. Soon we are both shouting, but neither of us can make sense out of what the other is saying as the wind is strong, an outcropping lies between us, and the echo off the steep rock walls impairs the acoustics.

“Are you alright?”
“I can’t hear you.”
“Nawp be goouch.”

After ten minutes or so, I climb half-way back up toward Charlie, where I find that our rope has become wedged between loose rocks and the sheer rock wall. Charlie wasn’t willing to descend as he thought I wasn’t belaying him; I wasn’t able to belay him due to the wedged rope. Another hour wasted.

Later, when we finally reach the upper edge of the Palisade Glacier’s yawning bergschrund, we decide that I, using ice screws, will anchor into its icy upper lip, then slowly lower Charlie into the crevasse to test whether the fragile ice lattice at its bottom will support his weight.

Thank God, it holds. Charlie crosses the ice, then front points up the opposite wall of the huge crack. Once on the other side, he anchors himself with our remaining screws, then prepares to belay me over the same delicate bridge.

The problem is that I weigh thirty pounds more than Charlie, and because he can’t lower me from his position across the crevasse, I will have to drop some eight feet onto the delicate bridge. Already dead tired from the long day’s effort, I just hope that I won’t punch through the ice and have a major problem on my hands.

The ice holds for me as well. Thank God, once more! Gingerly, I traverse the lattice and climb the other side, being more hauled up by Charlie than by using my own strength. We’re both working with a lot of nervous energy.

Standing on the downslope of the bergschrund, we’re tired, hungry, and shivering—but pleased with ourselves. North Pal was a goal for years.

It’s now 1:30 a.m., and the bright moonlight illuminates the couloir above and the Palisade Glacier below. What a sight. We coil our frozen rope and start down the steep incline. The comforts of our tent and down sleeping bags lie another half mile away.

MR: University Pk (13,589’): Sat morning we will depart on trail from Onion Valley and make camp above Bench Lk. Sun we will leave camp at dawn to make our way up the mostly third class North Face to the summit for a total of 1.4 mi and 2000’ of gain. After summiting we will head back down to camp via the same route we came up, pack up and head out. This is a Restricted Mountaineering outing, so participants must be current Sierra Club members and must submit a Sierra Club Medical Form to join the trip. Note that permit severely limits group size. Email the ldr with contact & carpool info, recent conditioning and experience, including high-altitude experience, to be considered for this trip. Ldr: Justin Bruno. Asst: Mat Kelliher.

I: Iron Mtn (11,149’) Adventure: Calling all Iron Men and Iron Women! Starting at the Beck Lks trailhead and crossing the Soda Springs bridge over the San Joaquin River, hike a mile on the historic John Muir Trail on our way to Noname Lake (1,870’ gain, 6.4 mi). Set up camp, hike to Beck Lks, swim or fish, and finish off the day with happy houring and star gazing. Rise to the sounds of Eastern Sierra wildlife as we hike to Fern Lk after breakfast and set up camp. The rest of the day will be spent conquering Iron Mtn (11,149’) with a peek at Iron Lk and its granite surrounds. Back at camp, relax and enjoy another happy hour with stories of past alpine adventures. Our 6 mi loop hike back to civilization on Sun will bring a close to this “Ironized” Adventure. Total miles 25.7, 3,539’ gain. Please send recent hiking resume and carpool info Ldr: Kim Crane. Asst: James Montross.

WTC, SPS
MR: Mt Huntington and Mt Stanford (N): Join us for a ridge traverse of a section of the Sierra Crest above Hilton Lakes. Saturday, we’ll backpack from Hilton Lakes Trailhead to camp at Lake 10,353’ (=4.5 miles, +1000’). Sunday, we’ll start very early to climb Mt. Huntington via the class 2/3 Northeast Ridge (1.5 miles, +2000’). From Huntington, we’ll attempt a 1.9 mile class 3 traverse of the Northwest Ridge to Mt. Stanford (N) (=+1200’). We’ll return to camp from Stanford via the class 2 East Slope route (=2.3 miles). Monday morning, we’ll hike back to the trailhead. Total stats for trip: 15 miles, +4500’. Must be comfortable on exposed third-class rock and have previous experience at altitude. Trip restricted to Sierra Club members—helmet and harness required. Permit limits group size. Send email with experience and conditioning to leaders Regge Bulman and Monica Suua.

I: Vogelsang Pk (11,493’): Join us for a couple of pleasant days in wildly scenic Yosemite NP on this overnight trip to climb a classic Sierra Peak in the Cathedral Range. Sat we pack in out of Tuolumne Meadows at a relaxed, but purposeful pace on trail alongside Rafferty Creek up and over Tuolumne Pass and beyond. Once we reach Vogelsang Lk, we will travel x-c around its eastern shore and set up camp near its headwaters to the south. Distance for the day will be about 8.0 mi with 1,900’ gain. At camp that night we will celebrate the gorgeous country we find ourselves in with a Festive Happy Hour under starry, summer-night skies. Sun we continue our southern course x-c up to and then along the eastern ridge of Vogelsang Pk to its summit, where we will savor the expansive views all around us before heading back down to our camp for a total of 2.0 RT mi with 1,200’ gain. Back at camp we will pack up and head out the same way we came in. Satisfies WTC Experience trip requirements. Permit limits group size and permit costs (about $10 per person) will be split among the group. Email Mat with contact and carpool info, recent conditioning and experience, including high-altitude experience, for trip status and details. Ldrs: Mat Kelliher, Jimmy Quan.

I: Arrow Pk (12,939’): Grind of a climb over a pass to reach a beautiful spot, about which R.J. Secor writes: “one of the finest [views] in the Sierra”. And the view from the summit isn’t bad either. Fri, start at 5,430’ in the desert for very strenuous 6,000’ climb to 11,360’ Taboose Pass, then drop to Bench Lk for total of 12 mi. Sat, moderately strenuous 6 mi, 2,400’ gain/loss off-trail ascent of SPS-listed Arrow Peak. Sun, return to cars. Although pace will be moderate, must be in very strong physical condition and comfortable with steep, off-trail hiking. Snow cancels trip. Send $10 permit fee, 2 SASE or email, H/W/phone, recent conditioning, experience, rideshare to Ldr: Mark Mitchell, Co-Ldrs: Beth Epstein, Daniel Kinzek.

Aug 25-26 | Sat-Sun WTC, SPS
I: Sawtooth Pk (12,343’): Join us for a weekend in the gorgeous Mineral King area of Sequoia NP. We’ll climb Sawtooth Pk, an SPS peak with stunning 360 degree views. On Sat morning, we’ll meet in Mineral King and backpack at a moderate pace up to Lower Monarch Lk (4.5 mi, 2700’ gain). We'll camp at the lake, where we can swim, fish, relax, and enjoy goodies at happy hour. Sun morning, we'll hike first on trail up to Sawtooth Pass, then go cross-country to Sawtooth Pk via its northwest ridge (2.2 mi, 2300’ gain). After a break on the peak to soak up the scenery, we'll head back to camp, pack up, and return to the cars. Permit limits group size. Priority given to WTC students. Please send email with contact info, hiking resume, conditioning, and altitude experience to the ldrs: Kate Miller, Jeremy Netka.

Dare to Lead!

Fall Leadership Training Seminar Set for October 6, 2018

Becoming a Sierra Club outings leader starts with curiosity and a love of the outdoors. What better way to step up and lead than by taking advantage of the training opportunities that the Angeles Chapter’s Leadership Training Committee provides each year?

As home to one of the largest outings programs on the planet, the Sierra Club Angeles Chapter’s many groups, sections, and committees sponsor thousands of trips ranging from beach barbecues to mountaineering expeditions. You can take the first step toward becoming a leader by attending a class offered October 6th, location to be determined. Deadline to register is September 22nd.

The seminar covers all the basics of leadership. Experienced leaders will tell you how to plan a trip, prevent problems on the trail and make sure that everyone—including you—has a great time. They’ll also explain good conservation and safety practices. And they’ll give you tips for getting your “O” rating quickly and then, if you choose, pursuing more advanced ratings.

The all-day class costs $30. The application is on-line at angeles.sierraclub.org/ltc. At this same site, you can pore over more of LTC’s upcoming offerings, which are also on the Schedule of Activities page.

Mail the application and check, payable to Sierra Club, to Steve Botan, LTC Registrar, 18816 Thornwood Circle, Huntington Beach 92646. You also can reach Steve by email (ltpseminarrегистar@gmail.com) or by phone (714-321-1296).

Scholarships are available for those with financial need. Apply to LTC Chair Anne Marie Richardson AMLeadership@gmail.com including completion of both a comprehensive written exam and a route planning assignment that will be mailed to you prior to the checkoff. See Chapter 6 of the Leader’s Reference Book for more information. Send contact information (including mailing address) and your qualifications to the leader as soon as possible.

REGARDING DISTRIBUTION OF THE ECHO
Please contact this email address newsletter@sierrapeaks.org for any problems with distribution of hardcopy or email versions.
This occasional just-for-fun puzzle is for you to figure out which Sierra peak or peaks are featured in the image. If you have a fine mystery peak puzzle to challenge Echo readers, please send it to tina@bowmanchange.com. We welcome any mountain images, including those from popular culture—imagery used and abused in film and print!

Send your answer to Tina Bowman at tina@bowmanchange.com.

Time to Renew
Don’t let your Sierra Echo subscription expire! The annual $10 subscription is due each year by January 1st and delinquent after March 31st.

For more information, see the back cover of this issue. Please make out checks to the Sierra Peaks Section and mail to the treasurer:

The Sierra Echo
is a quarterly publication of the Sierra Peaks Section of the Sierra Club’s Angeles Chapter. For more information, see the back of this newsletter. All questions, copy, and photo submissions should be directed to Tina Bowman, Editor, The Sierra Echo, preferably via email at tina@bowmanchange.com. Refer to the SPS Roster for mailing address. The Echo will also be available as a PDF download at the SPS website and via a link sent to all SPS members opting for this method.
When one makes first contact with an organization, especially if it's outdoors oriented, a wise move is quickly to size up the qualities of the leadership. That my wife, Nancy, and I did in our first contact with the Sierra Peaks Section. The date, a half century ago, was May 4, 1957; the leader was John Robinson; and the trip was a backpack to climb Olancha Peak.

Sixty-one persons were at the trailhead when John called for introductions and clearly spelled out the plans for the entire outing. The main party consisted of fifty-three people, and trail was followed to Olancha Pass on the Sierra crest. In that early year, only cross-country terrain led to our campsite, the ground of which was mostly snow covered. On the second day, forty-two climbers made the summit by 7:30 a.m. on an icy snow-covered slope, and all of the participants got back to our cars without any problems. John kept the group in order, gave encouragement along the way, and made the trip doubly successful by sharing his information about this part of the Southern Sierra. These qualities quickly expanded and became even more apparent, and our respect for him grew into admiration as we watched his successes as an author.

Now, with his passing on April 24 in retirement at Loveland, Colorado, it's time to reflect on what made this man so worthy. Most recently, it was John who authored the detailed "Passages" article remembering SPS's founding chairman, Frank Sanborn. That account appeared in the April-June 2018 issue of The Sierra Echo and also yielded some background on John. For one thing, John was new to the Sierra Club in 1953 when he met Frank for the first time and was persuaded to get involved with trips to the High Sierra. John was overseas on military duty in the summer of 1955 but completed that service in time to be part of the official birth of the section in October 1955. And Frank and John co-led Deer Mtn. on May 5-6, 1956, the first official SPS trip. John earned his SPS emblem that year.

In 1957, John became the founding editor of The Sierra Echo, then published on a Ditto machine, and ably handled that chore through 1958. In February 1961, he took over similar duties with the DPS Newsletter, as it was then known, and he held that post until early 1964. He became SPS chair in 1964 after serving twice as SPS vice chair (1957 and 1958) and twice as alternate officer (1958 and 1962). In addition, he served as DPS vice chair (1961), chair (1962), and member at large officer (1964-65).

Despite a passion for peak climbing and leading trips, he also was forming an interest in editing, writing, and publishing. Still, he climbed dozens of the major peaks in the Sierra and the U.S. Northwest, including Mt. Hood and Rainier. He also twice hiked the Chilkoot Trail in Alaska and the Yukon. Golden Hinde, the imposing high point of Vancouver Island in British Columbia, was among his other ascents.

But the duties that accompanied his elected offices apparently weren’t compelling enough to diminish his interest in becoming an author, so John moved up the publishing ladder by scouting the terrain and writing a series of soft-cover hiking guides. Published in 1967 by La Siesta Press, the first was Camping and Climbing in Baja California.

Next, starting in May 1971, emerged his larger and more complicated guidebook, Trails of the Angeles: 100 Hikes in the San Gabriels, followed a year later by San Bernardino Mountain Trails: 100 Hikes in Southern California. Both were published by Wilderness Press and required regular scouting trips for subsequent editions.

Then, after John’s extensive scouting in the Sierra, there appeared in 1973 and 1974 the first editions of three booklets in the Wilderness Press High Sierra Hiking Guide series. One of these covered the Mt. Goddard area, while another dealt with Mt. Pinchot and vicinity. The third, written with SPSer Jim Jenkins, focused on Kern and Olancha Peaks.

In August 1989 there emerged the first fruits of John’s extensive research at UCLA and the Huntington Library, namely the first edition of the hard-cover history titled The San Bernardinos: The Mountain Country from Cajon Pass to Oak Glen; Two Centuries of Changing Use. This book was followed in August 1991 by The San Gabriels: The Mountain Country from Soledad Canyon to Lytle Creek. In 1993, with Bruce D. Risher as co-author, there appeared another hard-cover history, The San Jacintos: The Mountain Country from Banning to Borrego Valley. All three books were published by the Big Santa Anita Historical Society and are viewed as definitive works.

Various journal articles and several soft-cover publications also were part of his history-focused effort. These include three booklets on mountain mines and a 2001 booklet titled Sierra Madre’s Old Mount Wilson Trail.

His work on foot and at his typewriter has been recognized over the years. From the Angeles Chapter, he received the Media Award (1976), the Outings Service Award (1990), and the Elna Bakker Nature Interpretation Award (2001). His honors from external bodies include the Donald H. Pflueger Award for local history, presented in 1992 by the Historical Society of Southern California (HSSC), and several Coke Wood Awards from the Westerners International. In October 2005, fellow status was bestowed upon him by the HSSC. That was the same year Gateways to Southern California was issued by the Big Santa Anita Historical Society. The dust jacket of this nearly 500-page book stressed that it resulted from twelve years of research and writing, making it the "crowning achievement" of the author’s career as a historian.
PASSAGES

Much of this product occurred while John was teaching full time in the Newport-Mesa Unified School District of Orange County. But he retired in 1988, moved to Fullerton, and more recently had been enjoying daily views of the Rocky Mountains from senior living centers in Fort Collins and Loveland. It was in Colorado, where daughter Cathy Robinson resides, that his illustrious life came to a peaceful end. Other survivors include daughters Robyn Franz and Jeanne Robinson.

Be at rest, John, and thanks for inspiring us on climbs as well as when learning more about history from reading your fine books.

Because John Robinson’s Trails of the Angeles and San Bernardino Mountain Trails have been such important guides for many of us and because many people know of John Robinson because of these books, we reached out to Doug Christiansen and David Money Harris, the new revisers, for their thoughts about John and his work.

On John Robinson

By David Money Harris

I moved back to Southern California in 1999 and soon discovered John Robinson’s guidebooks and began eagerly exploring our wonderful mountains. In 2005, John retired from guidebook writing, and through a series of fortuitous events, his editor Roslyn Bullas at Wilderness Press invited me to update the sixth edition of San Bernardino Mountain Trails. I’ve been continually grateful that John entrusted his book to me as a young writer and hiker and that I’ve had the chance literally to follow his footsteps.
The first edition of San Bernardino Mountain Trails, published in 1971, opens with an eloquent charter for guidebook authors:

> To know the mountains is to understand all of the various components, which, when blended together, make mountains what they are—their geology, their flora and fauna, their climatic pattern, their history of human use, their place in today’s environment, as well as their topography. The sum total of these components gives a mountain range its own unique character. Therefore, writing a meaningful guidebook requires much more than merely logging mileages and directions. It requires selectively gathering knowledge and fitting this knowledge together into a meaningful whole.

Having devoted nearly seven decades to explore, research, and share his knowledge of the Transverse and Peninsular Ranges, John Robinson was unsurpassed in his understanding of all of the components of Southern California’s mountains.

Mountains rise and fall in geological time, but trails change much faster. John’s passing is an opportunity to reflect on how the trails have changed over a human lifetime. John completed the first edition of San Bernardino Mountain Trails in 1971, and I updated the seventh edition in 2016. Over that time, twenty-three of the one hundred hikes were replaced. The western San Bernardino Mountains were especially hard-hit, with hikes on Cleghorn, Sugarpine, Monument, Marshall, and Arrowhead being removed because they were drive-ups, burnt out, or blocked by private property. Similarly, Barrel Spring, Aspen Grove, and Morton Peak trails have been impacted by fire. The Yucaipa Ridge has been plagued by private property issues, impacting five hikes, and the Morongo Indian Reservation has closed access to Raywood Flat and Kitching Peak. Saddest of all, the world’s largest Champion Joshua Tree is gone because hooligans shot it to death. The San Jacinto and Santa Rosa Mountains have seen far less change, largely due to the wilderness protection and the smaller number of hikes in the fire-prone chaparral belt. The Cinco Poses Trail gets little use compared to the better-defined neighboring Black Mountain Trail. The Live Oak Canyon Trail is badly faded after the Palm Canyon Fire. The Cahuilla Reservation has closed the summit of Toro Peak, which is now an antenna installation.

In place of these trails, we have added many excellent new trails including Heart Rock, Deep Creek Hot Springs, the Exploration Trail, Grays Peak, Mountain Home Flats, and the Santa Ana River Trail in the San Bernardino Mountains. The Palm Springs Aerial Tramway opened up easy access to trails on the east side of San Jacinto. The demanding Jo Pond Trail climbs from Palm Canyon, and an epic route ascends Rabbit Peak from the south by way of Villager. The Pacific Crest Trail was completed, easing access to the rugged Desert Divide. If space permitted, we could add more than a dozen great trails lacing the lower portions of the Santa Rosa Mountains.

A number of original trips have become substantially longer. The Poopout Hill trailhead on San Gorgonio was closed for wilderness protection, moving the trailhead to South Fork and adding four miles round trip to popular routes on the north side of San Gorgonio. Likewise, the Old Santa Rosa trailhead moved. The Lost Creek Trail on the south side of San Gorgonio was closed by private property owners despite a long history of public access, so hikers must make a long detour by way of Alger Creek.

Climate change, wildfire, and property development will continue to change our mountain trails. One day, our children will find trails only where previous generations had the foresight and dedication to protect the land and maintain the paths.
John Robinson

By Doug Christiansen

Growing up in the San Gabriel Valley in the 1970’s, at some point in my early teens I heard the nearby mountains beckon. This meant a trip to Sport Chalet in La Canada for a pair of Vibram-sole boots, an external-frame backpack, and a copy of John Robinson’s Trails of the Angeles. In those pre-gps, pre-internet days, John’s trail guide was THE bible. You had to have it. It hit the shelves just as the environmental movement coincided with a renewed interest in hiking and backpacking. He wrote wonderfully, the words rolling off the pages, conversational yet informative, as if you had just run into him on the trail. He not only told you how to get there but a little about who had been there before and some of the amazing things they’d done. Decades later friends and I can still recite entire passages from that first edition, the one with Mt. Baldy on the cover.

I first met John in the late 90’s, at group hikes organized by the Sierra Madre Historical Society. On the trail he set a stiff pace; we relative “youngsters” had to work hard to keep up. His knowledge of Southern California history was encyclopedic. And he knew the San Gabriels better than anyone I’ve ever known. But he didn’t stop there—his guidebooks cover everything from Baja to the southern Sierra. And he wrote several larger, hardcover “coffee table” type books that are well-worth seeking out.

When John let it be known that he would like to “retire” from the legwork and revising that is the lot of a trail guide writer, I was fortunate enough to be in the right place at the right time and so had the honor of taking over “maintenance” duties of Trails of the Angeles. I quickly became aware of what an accomplishment it was, back in 1970, for John to research, walk, and report on these one hundred hikes and their human and natural histories. My wish would be that no changes would need be made to the original, but many factors—chiefly fire—have conspired to make the current ninth edition a significant departure from the first. Climate change and a combination of overuse and neglect present all of us who love the mountains with the challenge of preserving for future generations these trails that John described so well. Writing in that first edition nearly fifty years ago, John said it best:

The future of the San Gabriels—as well as other mountain ranges—rests with the population that lives nearby. In the words of mountain historian Charles Clark Vernon, “They are truly a gift to the people.” What the people will finally do with this gift of nature remains to be seen.
Bob Beach,
a friend to many of us, leader in Palos Verdes/South Bay and group leader for Long Beach-South Bay Wilderness Travel Course for many years, died Sunday, April 2. He was active into his nineties. From 2000 to 2004 he led a number of SPS and HPS hikes with Mike Dillenback.

Neko Colevins
June 13, 1923 - February 23, 2015

By Barbara Lilley

It was only recently that I learned that Neko Colevins had passed away in February 2015 at the age of ninety-one. Neko hiked with the SPS and DPS from the 1960’s to the early 1990’s, often with Gordon MacLeod as well as Andy Smatko. He was a strong and congenial hiker, but although being a good cook, he was sometimes outspoken at restaurants if he didn’t like the food. He was on the trip to the Himalayas on which Arkel Erb was killed, though he had left the area earlier. He was a color photography technician, and some of his photos are in the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C.

There is one story that needs to be told. Many years ago, at one of the SPS monthly meetings, there was some discussion about whether alcohol should be allowed on Sierra Club trips (this WAS a long time ago!). Neko took the floor and asked if people were referring to hard liquor, or FOOD—like wine and beer! Of course, that brought down the house and ended the discussion right then and there. There was only one Neko!
