Tehipite Topic members need to be aware of a new bill that has been introduced in Congress, which will impact the Mineral King portion of Sequoia-Kings Canyon National Park, as well as the Redwood Canyon area. This bill would designate new Wilderness areas in Mineral King and Redwood Canyon. At first glance, the bill may seem to honor former Congressman John Krebs’ leadership in the 1970s by naming the new Wilderness in the Mineral King area as the “John Krebs Wilderness.” But there is a problem. It turns out that the current proposal would dishonor John Krebs by stripping the Mineral King area of protections which it presently has. Questions have been raised as to the Sierra Club’s position.

Let’s look back in history at how and why Mineral King came to be protected.

In 1965, the U.S. Forest Service issued a prospectus calling for proposals to develop a ski complex in Mineral King. Walt Disney Productions won the competition with their proposal to build a massive development consisting of numerous ski runs cleared through the forests; hotels, gift shops, and restaurants in the valley bottom; and mountain-top restaurants located on the Sequoia National Park boundary, so diners could have a “wilderness experience” as they sipped their aperitifs. The plan included a snow avalanche management program to ensure that nature did not get the upper hand and kill too many tourists. In order to ensure a profit for Disney, the taxpayers of California were to have provided a four-lane highway into the remote area.

In 1978, under the leadership of local Congressman John Krebs, Mineral King was transferred from Sequoia National Forest to Sequoia National Park, putting the controversy to rest and providing for Mineral King to be preserved unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations.

Now, in 2007, a bill (H.R. 3022) has been introduced into the House of Representatives, sponsored by Democratic Congressman Jim Costa and co-sponsored by Republican Devin Nunes.

Unfortunately, the maps which accompany the bill call for exclusion from Wilderness designation of a one-mile-wide swath through the center of the Mineral King valley. This has been proposed in order to make it possible to remove timber under the guise of “fuel reduction.” This land has been identified as being of Wilderness quality, and the trees are presently protected from logging. Passage of this bill into law, with the present maps accompanying it, would result in the degradation of lands which are currently protected.

There are a number of other objectionable provisions which were inserted into the bill at the insistence of various

Help Put Wild Pacific Salmon on the Road to Recovery
Right now, the federal government is allowing four costly, outdated dams on the lower Snake River in Washington State to drive wild salmon to extinction while limiting opportunities for recreation and clean, renewable energy alternatives. Sierra Club and the Save Our Wild Salmon Coalition have launched a nationwide effort to collect and deliver tens of thousands of comments in the form of letters, photos, art, and video that urge your decision-makers to...

GIVE A DAM FOR SALMON AND STEELHEAD
Resolve the Pacific salmon crisis in the Columbia and Snake Rivers.
The Columbia-Snake River basin, spanning six western states, was once home to the most abundant runs of... interest groups, who are either uncomfortable with the concept of Wilderness, or flat out opposed to it.

There is nothing in the bill which would add to existing protection of our natural resources, but there are many things in the bill which would degrade existing protections.

John Krebs’ excellent contributions to the protection of our natural heritage while he was in Congress would be dishonored by enactment of this bill into law.

Because the true purpose of the bill has been concealed, people who normally assume that a Wilderness designation is always a great idea have supported the bill. Only now are they discovering that there is more to this bill than they had realized. They are beginning to question why they should support the bill. And they are asking why the Sierra Club is not opposed to the bill.

By the time our readers see this article, the situation may be quite different than it was at the time of writing. For additional or updated information, please email George Whitmore at geowhit1954@comcast.net.

salmon and steelhead in the world – as many as 16 million wild fish returned each year to these rivers and their tributaries. It is a very different story today: all runs of salmon and steelhead in the Snake River are either already extinct or listed as threatened or endangered under the Endangered Species Act. This year, just four Snake River sockeye survived to return to their spawning grounds in the mountains of central Idaho.

Four fish.

On October 31, the federal government released their “anything-but-new” Draft Salmon Plan for the Columbia-Snake Basin. The three previous salmon plans were thrown out of federal court for violating the Endangered Species Act and failing to protect salmon and steelhead. Unfortunately, this draft is yet another blueprint for the extinction of Snake River salmon and the continued waste of billions of taxpayer dollars on inadequate, failed recovery measures. Wild Pacific salmon are a national treasure – supporting ecosystems, wildlife, fishing communities and recreational opportunities. We deserve a federal salmon plan that guarantees real recovery, not another expensive path to extinction. Help us send a resounding message to Congress, calling for leadership and a science-based salmon plan that recovers our imperiled salmon.

With your help, we can fix this. Dam removal will restore 140 river miles and reconnect salmon to more than 5,000 miles of pristine habitat. Healthy runs of salmon can again support jobs and recreation. This will be the largest river restoration project in U.S. history, an enormous win for salmon, ecosystems, and river lovers everywhere. Our success depends on grassroots voices and action in Congress. With your efforts and your Senators’ leadership, you can help solve the crisis on the Snake River.

Here’s how you can help deliver a huge response from across the country.

Ron Stork, a former member of our Chapter, will be the featured speaker at our Awards Banquet, where he will present “Rivers Run Through It: Central California Rivers and You.” For the last 15 years, Ron has held the principal responsibility of organizing Friends of the River’s flood management advocacy efforts in the American River watershed. Ron has worked on Central Valley and California flood management issues, serving on the California Department of Water Resources’ (DWR) California Floodplain Management Task Force, on working groups of the Corps/Reclamation Board Sacramento & San Joaquin Basins Comprehensive Study.

Recently, he served as a member of the independent review panel chaired by General Gerald Galloway on “A California Challenge – Flooding in the Central Valley,” a report to the DWR. He has also worked with major water-quality challenged rivers as well, serving on the DWR/Department of the Interior Citizens Advisory Committee for the San Joaquin Valley Drainage Program. In his spare time, Ron can be found ambling along mountain trails or floating western rivers, searching for rare wildflowers. Plan to join your friends on January 26th at the Tehipite Chapter Annual Awards Banquet.

Banquet tickets are $25.
Checks should be made out to “Tehipite Chapter, Sierra Club.”
