The Legislative Process

Every year a number of environmentally related bills are introduced into the State Senate and State House of Representatives. Here is what happens:

1. A legislator decides to introduce a bill—either because a constituent or group wants the bill introduced or because the legislator himself wants the bill. That legislator contacts the Office of the Legislative Counsel or the House or Senate Bill Room and "drops it in".

2. The legislator gets the bill written in official language and "drops it in".

3. Each bill is sent to a standing committee in each—usually the Senate Environment, Conservation, and Tourism Committee or the House Conservation and Environment Committee. Each of these has subcommittees that must consider the bill.

4. Depending on the PERCEIVED support for a bill, it is either put "on notice" or deferred for a short period indefinitely. Being put "on notice" means that it will be brought up in the committee for discussion and voted on.

5. If it passes the committee, it will go to the full body for a vote; if it involves money, beforehand it will probably go to the Finance Committee for further discussion and vote; if it passes, it will go before the full body for a vote.

The best place for you to have an impact is in Step 4, when the bill is coming up before the subcommittees and committees. Then is when a phone call from a constituent or interested party makes a difference. But, legislators have short memories. If a bill does not come up that week, you may have to call again the next week.

Legislative Calendar for the week: This is a weekly list of meetings of subcommittees and committees and which bills will come up for a vote. The advantage of having a calendar is that you can plan visits to the Capitol, letters and calls to legislators. This list is prepared by Mike Murphy, the Sierra Club lobbyist.

Legislative Updates: These are weekly updates on the progress of environmental bills. They are compiled by Stewart Clifton, lobbyist for Tennessee Conservation Voters.

Dogwood Alliance Targets Bowater, Inc., An Effort to Protect the Cumberland Plateau

By Caroline Keicher, and Kelly Sheehan

One of the most beautiful areas in our state is under attack from the irresponsible and devastating practices of industrial logging. The native hardwood forests of the Cumberland Plateau and Southern Appalachian Region are being lost at incredible rates, as are our forests across the South. Nearly 6 million acres of Southern forests are lost every year, primarily for the production of paper. Unless we act, we risk watching our ecological heritage reduced to a few sparse acres smattering a once rich landscape.

For this reason, the Dogwood Alliance, a network of 70 organizations protecting southern forests and communities from the impacts of unsustainable industry forest practices, is targeting the largest paper company operating in the Cumberland Plateau and Southern Appalachian region: Bowater, Inc.

Based in Greeneville, SC, Bowater owns approximately 260,000 acres on the Plateau, and owns or manages an additional 211,000 acres in Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, and North Carolina. Bowater has already converted much of the native mixed hardwood forest to biologically sterile pine farms over the past several decades, managing an astounding 57% of this land (315,000 acres) as short rotation pine plantations. The company was still converting natural forests to plantations as recently as 2003.

There are four unsustainable forestry practices used by Bowater and other companies in the Cumberland Plateau and Southern Appalachian region that are most concerning for Dogwood Alliance: large scale

A response from the TN Chapter CAFO Committee
By Steve Ferguson

It remains our opinion that TDEC did not properly consider the impact of a proposed CAFO on the creeks, wells and ground-water of Johnson County when they issued a permit to High Mountain Holstein in the minimum time. For instance, TDEC’s permit would allow three lagoons to be built right over a significant wet weather stream that is often filled with rushing water. The little valley that will be excavated for the lagoon is a traditional watershed that leads into a tributary of Roan Creek. Also of concern, are the many family wells and homes in close proximity to proposed dairy facilities that will house 999 dairy cows (plus calves, the largest such CAFO in Tennessee. Unbelievably, no specific hydrology study was done on this area while the permit was being considered to determine where the seepage from the lagoons might go.

Yes, TDEC did hold the required Public Hearing on the General CAFO Rules last spring in Greeneville and yes, citizens from Johnson County presented Saya Qualls and staff with numerous oral and written questions outlining, in detail, our concerns. These questions were thorough and based on scientific studies of the negative impacts of factory farms. We cited research that unequivocally demonstrated that factory farms (CAFOs) are major sources of water, soil and air pollution in many places across the country where they have been permitted. Some sources used by Johnson County citizens in making their arguments were materials from the American Public Health Association, the National Academy of Science, EPA, USDA, University of Iowa, Duke University, Colorado College Department of Economics, the Natural Resource Defense Council, Sierra Club and others. TDEC seemed totally unaware of these studies and less than expert in talking about our own General Permit Rules that were being discussed at the Hearing that evening.

Illustrating TDEC’s apparent lack of commitment to the oversight of CAFOs in Tennessee, Ms. Child admitted in correspondence, that the Department of Environment and Conservation has never done a study of any kind on the already permitted CAFOs in Tennessee. Such studies would seem warranted considering documented evidence of harm done in other states and in reference to Tennessee’s own 303(d) list. One might conclude that TDEC doesn’t want to know about and be accountable for the potential damage these entities can and may do by making the state.

At the two “informal gatherings” held in Mountain City in August by TDEC and the Department of Agriculture, county citizens numbering nearly 500 at the first meeting and over 800 at the second, voiced their strong opposition to the plan; again calling attention to national research studies demonstrating numerous problems with factory farms. Lagoon construction and seepage, run off, toxic gas emissions and volatile organic compounds, groundwater contamination, hormones and antibiotics, loss of property values, animal waste disposal and over application of waste, traffic, noise and lights were all subjects of inquiry. Within a few days after the final meeting on August 31, the permit was granted without further study or hesitation. It appeared that TDEC had given little or no consideration to the many significant issues that very much concerned the residents of our county on the occasion of those meetings. We all know that there is an important difference between hearing and listening, and listening they did not do.

Lastly, in response to Ms. Child’s postulations about a citizen’s right of appeal, Joe McCaleb, attorney for the Johnson County Citizen’s Committee for the defense Council, Sierra Club and others. TDEC seemed totally unaware of these studies and less than expert in talking about our own General Permit Rules that were being discussed at the Hearing that evening. A response from the TN Chapter CAFO Committee By Steve Ferguson

January 13, 2005

Dear Tenes-Sierran Readership:

I have high regard for the Sierra Club and would like to share some additional information not presented in the January 2005 Tenes-Sierran front page article regarding a concentrated animal feeding operation (CAFO) in Johnson County. Tennessee’s CAFO rules are more stringent and more protective than the federal EPA standards for CAFOs. As proposed, the Johnson County dairy operation is just under the EPA size threshold for regulation, so if it were to locate in a state regulated under EPA’s national rules, no permit would have been required.

Our citizens can expect Tennessee’s CAF0 program to defend Tennessee’s waters and thereby protect human health and environment. Our requirements for nutrient management planning, management of buffer around application areas, and special requirements for liquid waste systems are designed to keep animal waste from contaminating our waters.

TDEC recognizes public input is important and critical for our work. Prior to the issuance of the Johnson County CAF0 General Permit, there was a public hearing in Greeneville to take citizen comments in April 2004. Because there was so much public interest regarding the Johnson County proposal, a group of senior Environment and Conservation staff from Nashville made two additional trips to Mountain City to seek input and answer questions in person. Meaningful information was shared and input collected at all these events.

The Johnson County project was granted coverage under the CAF0 general permit on September 3, 2004 - the very end of our deadline for making a decision on this issue. The permit met all criteria outlined for water quality control measures at animal feeding operations. It is important to note our department’s authority to scrutinize this proposed operation to be sure that it met all requirements of the rules. Meeting all the requirements of the rules, the department authorized the proposed operation.

TDEC is sensitive to citizens’ rights of appeal. Currently, Tennessee citizens do have the right to file a legal proceeding to challenge the issuance of an individual permit, the issuance of a general permit or coverage under a general permit. The department remains engaged in discussions on how we may continue to enhance the present avenues of appeal available to citizens.

The mission of Environment and Conservation is to protect, preserve and improve Tennessee’s natural resources, and my expectation is that we will fulfill that responsibility with an attitude of service and sense of accountability. While we do not agree on every issue, I am grateful for the opportunity to work with the Sierra Club toward our shared goal of a cleaner Tennessee.

Sincerely,

Betsy L. Child
Commissioner,
TN Department of Environment and Conservation

STRATEGY MEETING: Tuesday, February 8, 7:30 p.m., Tennessee Valley Unitarian Church, 2931 Kingsport Pike, Knoxville. For our February program, we welcome Kim DeLozier, Supervisory Wildlife Biologist with the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. No surprise - Kim will be talking about wildlife in the Park, elk, bears and other wild critters, their status and what they face in the future. Kim puts on a good program so this is one you won’t want to miss. Call 966-4142 for more information.

MIDDLE TENNESSEE GROUP (Nashville)

PROGRAM MEETING: Thursday, (February 10) at 7:00 p.m. at Radnor Lake Visitor Center in Nash-ville. Caroline Keicher of the Dogwood Alliance will present a program on how they are working to protect southern forests and communities from the impacts of unsustainable forestry practices. The Dogwood Alliance works to change the way paper companies do business, holding paper companies accountable for the environmental and social impacts of their business practices while creating financial incentives for positive change by creating market demand for environmentally sound products.

The Dogwood Alliance is currently focusing on the Cumberland plateau and Southern Appalachian region, a place of beauty, diversity, and awe. This area is home to the South’s largest remaining intact hardwood forests, the global center of freshwater aquatic diversity, and is a virtual “Salamander kingdom”, with the richest concentration of salamanders of any temperate region of the world. It is also home to hundreds family-owned sawmills and hardwood businesses and is a hotspot of tourism and whitewater recreation.

Yet the forests and way of life in this area are being destroyed for the production of disposable paper products through logging endangered hardwood forests and replacing them with lifeless pine farms. Chemical fertilizers and herbicides are being sprayed from airplanes to make sure only the pines grow back. Many of the chemicals are linked to making people sick and degrading the water quality.

This talk will focus on the ecological richness of the Cumberland Plateau and Southern Appalachian region, along with the growing threats to this precious ecosystem. We’ll discuss what’s being done right here in Nashville to join the rest of the Southeast’s efforts to protect this area, and what you can do to help.

For more information on this program, contact Shelli Dimauro at globalpeace04@hotmail.com or call (615) 260-0030. (Enter the Radnor Lake area on Otter Creek Road, which is accessible only from Granny White Pike.) Regardless of membership or activism status, everyone is encouraged to attend our program meetings. We welcome you to join us for this informative program.

STRATEGY MEETING: Wednesday, (February 23) at 6:30 p.m. Conservation issues are first on the agenda. Bring your re-usable cup and sack dinner, or snack on refreshments provided by our group and get the news on what’s happening in our Middle Tennessee Group. All members are invited to attend our conservation and administrative meeting at 2021 21st Avenue South (the old St. Bernard Academy Build- ing). We meet on the 4th floor. We welcome you to be with us to learn about the group’s conservation initiatives and community activities. For conserva- tion issues or additions to the conservation agenda, contact Katherine Pendleton at 615-943-6877 or email Karibug1959@aol.com. Dogwood Alliance Targets Bowater, Inc., An Effort to Protect the Cumberland Plateau in Calhoun, TN, and drives most of the cutting on the Plateau.

Between its operations in the U.S. and Canada, Bowater, Inc. churns out about three million tons of newsprint a year. In addition, the company makes paper used in magazines, catalogs, advertising circulars, book paper, pulp for the open market, and lumber products.

While Bowater has reported a net loss for the past two years, CEO Arnie Nemirow brought in over $3 million in compensation, including stock options. In 2002, because it is the largest paper company operating in the Cumberland Plateau and Southern Appalachian region, changes in Bowater’s forestry practices are essential to protecting this critical ecosystem. Dogwood Alliance is building on years of citizen resistance to Bowater’s practices in the region by challenging Bowater to:

1) Stop logging and buying wood from endangered forests.

2) End unsustainable forestry practices, including the conversion of natural forests to plantations, large-scale clearcutting of natural forests, and the aerial spraying of chemical fertilizers and herbicides.

3) Maximize the use of post-consumer recycled waste in all of its paper products to take pressure off of natural forests.

To get involved here in Tennessee, or to find out more about the campaign, contact Caroline Keicher at 615.248.6500 ext. 101 or ckeicher@greencorps.org. Let us know if your group is interested in having us stop by on our “Real Neighbor” tour.

Group News

by Charlie Rond

Germantown's precedent-setting push for a proposed Wolf River Parkway through the Riverwoods Natural Area prompted the formation recently of a Shelby County Conservation Coalition that includes the Chickasaw Group of the Sierra Club.

Tentatively called “SC3,” the coalition was a response also to proposed development on Gray’s Creek and at Shelby Farms. Keith Kirkland, Executive Director of the Wolf River Conservancy, called the meeting to discuss the problem areas.

Joining Keith were Carolyn Pierce, President of Tennessee Trails Association and Vice Chair of the Chickasaw Group and her fellow TTA members Gloria Linski and Freddie Felts; Laura Adams, President of Shelby Farms Park and Steve Sondheim of FOSP and the Bicycle/Pedestrian Advisory Council (BPAC); Jeanne Arthur, Conservation Chair of the Garden Club of Memphis, and Group Chair Charlie Rond, Conservation Chair James Baker and Don Richardson, State Chair of the Sierra Club.

The Mayor of Germantown, Sharon Goldworthy, has suggested that the “Wolf River Parkway” be approved through the Riverwoods Natural Area and that the area be moved or de-designated.

Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation (TDEC) Director Betsy Childs spoke recently to the Garden Club of Memphis and said no change would be allowed to the area without legislation or a “locally-approved” plan was adopted.

The Germantown plan was submitted to TDEC, which oversees the Riverwoods Natural Area, but not to the Garden Club that is the owner of the natural area. Assistant TDEC Director Jim Fyke said there is no way the area would be violated without the approval of the Garden Club.

One of the options mentioned for Riverwoods is enlargement and movement to an area known as the Lovitt property which lies to the east and along the north side of the Wolf River.

The Sierra Club’s concern is that a precedent would be set by de-designating or moving the natural area that could adversely affect any or all of the other 69 natural areas in the State of Tennessee.

Winter Chapter Meeting

Snow and icy temperatures may have reduced the turnout but did not deter a jovial mood, good food and an excellent program at the Winter Chapter Meeting at Cedars of Lebanon State Park.

John Jefferson of the Dogwood Alliance gave a Power-Point presentation Saturday night on the state of clear-cutting, pulp mills and forestry harvesting on the Cumberland Plateau and the Southeast U.S. It was an excellent program and we thank John for traveling from Knoxville to make the presentation.

Don Richardson was elected chair of the Tennessee Chapter to succeed Liz Dixon and action was deferred until the upcoming Spring meeting to select a Vice Chair.

Chickasaw Group hosted the weekend and fed the Chapter ExCom with lasagna and salad and bread on Saturday night along with lemon and strawberry pies prepared by Group Vice Chair Carolyn Pierce.

Ten Essentials for Hiking

Sierra Club Outings offer a variety of wilderness and near-wilderness experiences. It is important to realize that while all trips are guided by a leader, it is ultimately the responsibility of the individual to operate in a safe manner. To this end, the following is a list of essential items, which should be modified according to the particular type of outing. These are:

1. Adequate map
2. First aid kit
3. Compass
4. Rain gear
5. Extra clothing (it is a good idea to always have a wool hat)
6. Matches
7. Knife
8. Flashlight
9. Extra food, water
10. The tenth essential. You decide what is the most important thing to bring!

Saturday February 5 - Sandhills Cranes at Hiwassee Water Refuge - Join us at the Hiwassee Water Refuge, north of Chat- tanoga, to watch the sandhill cranes. The local school has talks, slide shows, buses to the refuge, all FREE. You may bring your own lunch and you need to bring gas money for the carpool, souvenirs, & hot chocolate. Cameras with telescopic lenses take the best photos. People share their telescopes or bring their own. Call Linda Smithyman at 615-822-1979 or lsmithymn@yahoo.com to register by Thursday evening to make sure that the trip is on and where/when to meet.

Saturday & Sunday February 5 to 6 - Harriet Tubman Day Hike - A five plus mile hike to the top of a middle Tennessee “mountain”. Call Linda Smithyman at 615-822-1979 or lsmithymn@yahoo.com to register by Thursday evening to make sure that the trip is on and where/when to meet.

Saturday February 12 - Ft Negley and Nashville Cemetery Visit - Join us for a visit to the newly opened Fort Negley, followed by a quick tour of the Nashville Cemetery. Fort Negley, built in 1862 to assist the Union with maintaining control of Nashville during the Civil War, was opened in December to the public. There’s about a mile of blacktop and boardwalk trails which take you around and in the portions of the fort which have been restored, along with signage describing the times and history. Nashville Cemetery, which opened in 1822, contains a mixture of early set- tler, Union and Confederate soldier, and African-American graves. Located close to the I40/165 interchange, south of downtown Nashville. Contact Diane at 615-895-1236 or Diane@Propson.com for details.

Sunday, February 13 - Cardwell Mountain Day Hike - A five plus mile hike to the top of a middle Tennessee “mountain” (450’ or so elevation). This is on private property adjacent to Cumberland Caves, but the owner, Mr. Martin, welcomes hikers. We will meet at the McDonald’s at the first Murfreesboro exit off I-24. Call Heloise at 615-896-6278 or e-mail her at stillwild@bellouth.net. Boots and drinking water are required for this hike.

Sunday, February 20 - Narrows of the Harpeth River Trip - Cold weather paddle five miles plus around the Nar- rows of the Harpeth at that State Natural Area near Kingston Springs. Easy take out and a two minute shuttle! BYOB (bring your own canoe) and your cold weather clothes. Long underwear and rain gear can substitute for a wet suit or a dry suit. Afterwards we will walk to the ridge above the Montgomery Bell tunnel and to a nearby ridge to see a petroglyph of a mace. Life jackets and drinking water are required for this outing. Call Heloise at 615-896-6278 or e-mail her at stillwild@bellouth.net.

Thursday - Sunday, March 3 to 6 - Volunteer at our booth at the Lawns and Garden Show - All shifts needed. Must be outgoing, happy people and willing to approach people as they walk by. Get into the show FREE by volunteering. Call Linda Smithyman at 615-822-1979 or email at lsmithymn@yahoo.com.

Volunteer Opportunity!

To help the Middle Tennessee Group, to help our senior and disabled recyclers, to have fun and to meet other Sierra’rs, please consider volunteering at our recycling site at the Elton Fields Koeger in Nashville. The site is open Saturday mornings from 9:00 to 12:00. You will have at least one other person working with you, and you can choose to volunteer only if it is convenient for you, whether that is just one time, monthly, quarterly, or every few months. Please call Recycling Coordinator David Bordenkircher at 333-3377 (H) or 741-1597, or e-mail him at dbordenkircher@ mindspring.com.

Many thanks to Darius Thiemel for many weeks of devoted work at our recycling site!
3rd Annual Wilderness First Aid Training
April 16th & 17th
Fall Creek Falls State Park
A wilderness first aid course where you invest 16 hours for a 2 year certification

Please join us for the third annual Sierra sponsored wilderness first aid training (WFA) the weekend of April 16th and 17th at Fall Creek Falls State Park. Landmark Learning, LLC, a long-term partner with SOLO (Stonehenge Outdoor Learning Opportunity) will perform the training again this year. Landmark’s WFA training as described on their website:

WFA - Wilderness First Aid - 16 hours / 2-yr certification. Originally called Backcountry First Aid, this course was the first wilderness medical training to be taught anywhere in the world. WFA covers the basics and the most common traumatic, medical, and environmental issues that occur in the backcountry.

This class includes:
- the anatomy of a crisis
- shock
- muscle
- shock
- muscular skeletal injuries
- the correct procedure to protect
- burns
- (ie, sprains and strains)
- yourself and others on your trip
- fractures
- while caring for the injured
- hypothermia
- splints
- the patient assessment survey
- frostbite
- dislocations
- vital signs
- lightning
- allergies
- the physical exam
- This class does not include CPR.

Please join us for this educational weekend that features top notch first aid training in an outdoor setting by instructors that have actual in the field experience. Last year’s training featured hands on learning, fellowship, group dining and just plain fun. Here are some quotes from previous year’s participants.

“An excellent course-very informative-very knowledgeable creative instructors-a must for all trip leaders or anyone who hikes outside organized trips.” -- Miriam McClenond

“There is no way that anyone should venture into the backcountry without a basic level of competence in first aid. The WFA course should be at the top of everyone’s skill acquisition wish list. Simply outstanding.” -- Tim Scholl

“A highly recommended course…essential learning for anyone who ventures into the backcountry, and a great group of folks with similar interests. I thoroughly enjoyed it.” -- Robin Johnston

When: April 16th and 17th Where: Fall Creek Falls State Park
What is included: Training by highly qualified instructors, mid-morning snacks, lunch, mid-afternoon snacks

More Thanks to Our “March Window” Contributors
Every year, the Tennessee Chapter initiates a local fundraising effort in March, when the national Club does not send our fundraising solicitations. This is called our “March Window”. This year’s campaign was for support of the Tennessee Chapter’s work in Tennessee and for our local PAC (Political Action Committee).

Listed below are additional contributors to 2004’s campaign. Many thanks to them for their generous contributions - and the many others who contributed, but did not check the “box” to release your name in the Tennessee-Sierran.

The Chapter’s annual Defenders of Tennessee campaign funds our advocacy and lobbying activities, and we invite new members, as well as all Sierrans who have not yet joined the Defenders, to join as your 2005 gift to the environment. During the past 8 years, this program has been very effective in representing the Sierra Club’s environmental agenda on Capitol Hill. Our Defenders can be very proud of the work we have done and the accomplishments of our Legislative Committee and our lobbyist, Mike Murphy. The Tennessee Chapter is able to hire a lobbyist such as Mike only because you and other dedicated members donate to this once-a-year solicitation.

Your contribution is not tax-deductible but is critical in enabling us to continue to have an advocate on “the hill”. Contributions of any size are valued and are very important in enabling us to continue this vital program. The Defender campaign brings in only a portion of the funds that we need to carry out our legislative and lobbying activities, and we must make up the balance out of our dwindling reserves. We are proud that this campaign is a volunteer activity, so all donations go to support the Defenders.

We invite YOU to join the Defenders. Please fill out the form below and send your check made out to Sierra Club, Defenders, c/o Adelle Wood, 4643 Villa Green Drive, Nashville, TN 37215. Thank you!

Sincerely,

Bill Terry, Legislative Co-Chair
Penny Brooks, Legislative Co-Chair

For the Time Being

ISBN: 0375403809
Author: Dillard, Annie

A Book Review By Micah Stover

For any of you that have ever read the work of Annie Dillard before, then certainly you will not have to strain to recognize the uniqueness and poignancy of her voice in her most recent novel entitled For the Time Being. This novel along with her others works such as Holy the Firm or Teaching a Stone to Talk, illustrates a consistent style and general thematic exploration. Dillard often is identified with many of the great transcendentalist philosophers such as Ralph Waldo Emerson or Henry David Thoreau. She localizes her focus and attention to questions that grapple with the seemingly paradoxical nature of human existence. To aid in this exploration, Dillard examines Nature with precision and scrutiny.

For the Time Being is structured somewhat differently than her other works. Each chapter begins with a section entitled “Birth”, followed by “Sand”, “Clouds”, “Island”, “Encounters”, “Thinker”, “Evil”, and finally concluding with a section entitled “Now”. Initially I thought this structural division seemed really interesting. I was anxious to understand in the process of reading how this structural division played into the overall thesis of the text. I must admit however that as much as I loved the text itself, I struggled to understand the intent behind these divisions.

As a result of this dilemma, I have come to only one of three possible conclusions. The first possibility is that perhaps I, the reader, have failed to see some sort of overarching connection or symbolism. The second possibility is that I, the reader, mistook what was simply intended as a method of style to be something more or greater; and then failed to see it because in actually there was nothing there to see. In other words, perhaps Dillard had two simultaneous tasks at hand when she was writing this book, the stylistic task and the literal, thematic task. Perhaps she didn’t intend for her audience to try to connect the two.

As I began to contemplate how to write a summary of such a vast work, it seemed apparent that I would need to shed some light onto the interconnectedness of the work as a whole. But this task was problematized by the fact that, as I noted above, I wasn’t sure I understood the interconnectedness of it all myself. Thus I began to flip back through the text, paying special attention to those sections or passages I’d marked as being especially significant. This proved to be very helpful because what I realized in so doing was that the interconnectedness of the novel was definitively there, although it was a quite subtle, abstract and highly metaphorical interconnectedness.

Clearly the book offers up a study pertinent to the realm of metaphysics. Interspersed throughout the text are references to almost all the world religions or holy texts. The book is presented in a nonlinear fashion. It is packed full of aphorisms, tiny nuggets from a contemplative and questioning mind. Also interspersed throughout the text are quotations from numerous religious scholars and thinkers. This is the part that is all quite clear and self-evident.

But, now to elaborate on the subtler, more abstract and metaphorical quality at play, that which relates to the structural component of the novel, the component which becomes increasingly important once certain correlations have been drawn. The novel opens with a collection of quotations that were said to have been found in a bottle on the beach. I think this introduction is vastly significant. The quote is as follows: “The legend of the Traveler appears in every civilization, perpetually assuming new forms, affirmations, powers, and symbols. Through every age he walks in utter solitude toward penance and redemption.” The Traveler is that being in the world which most exemplifies Dillard the metaphysical path. The Traveler is that being which most easily and fluidly moves and shifts through all of the various sections and subheading of the novel. He moves in and out of the realm of paradox not in doubt, but in expectation and longingness. He is solitary in this world precisely because he cannot find a fitting niche within the social construct. And he pays the price of loneliness and angst. But he is redeemed through the faith that transcends culture, context, and paradox.

Ultimately, Dillard has lived up to the precedent established by her earlier works. She has remained true to her own sense of a highly poetic style of prose and in delivering the reader through the journey of the text, on a fruitful philosophical endeavor. Although this book is a bit denser in nature than Teaching a Stone to Talk or An American Childhood, the true Dillard fan will not be disappointed in the least.
